DESCRIPTION:

The two adjoining rowhouses are located on the west side of North Poppleton Street and have three stories and two bays each. All window and door openings in the painted brick facades are boarded. The first floor window of 126 has been made smaller, raising the wood sill about a foot above the original location. Wood steps are located before the doorway at 126 and concrete steps at 128. The flat arches are gauged brick. Corbeled brick cornices are almost hidden behind gutters at the edge of the gable roof.

SIGNIFICANCE:

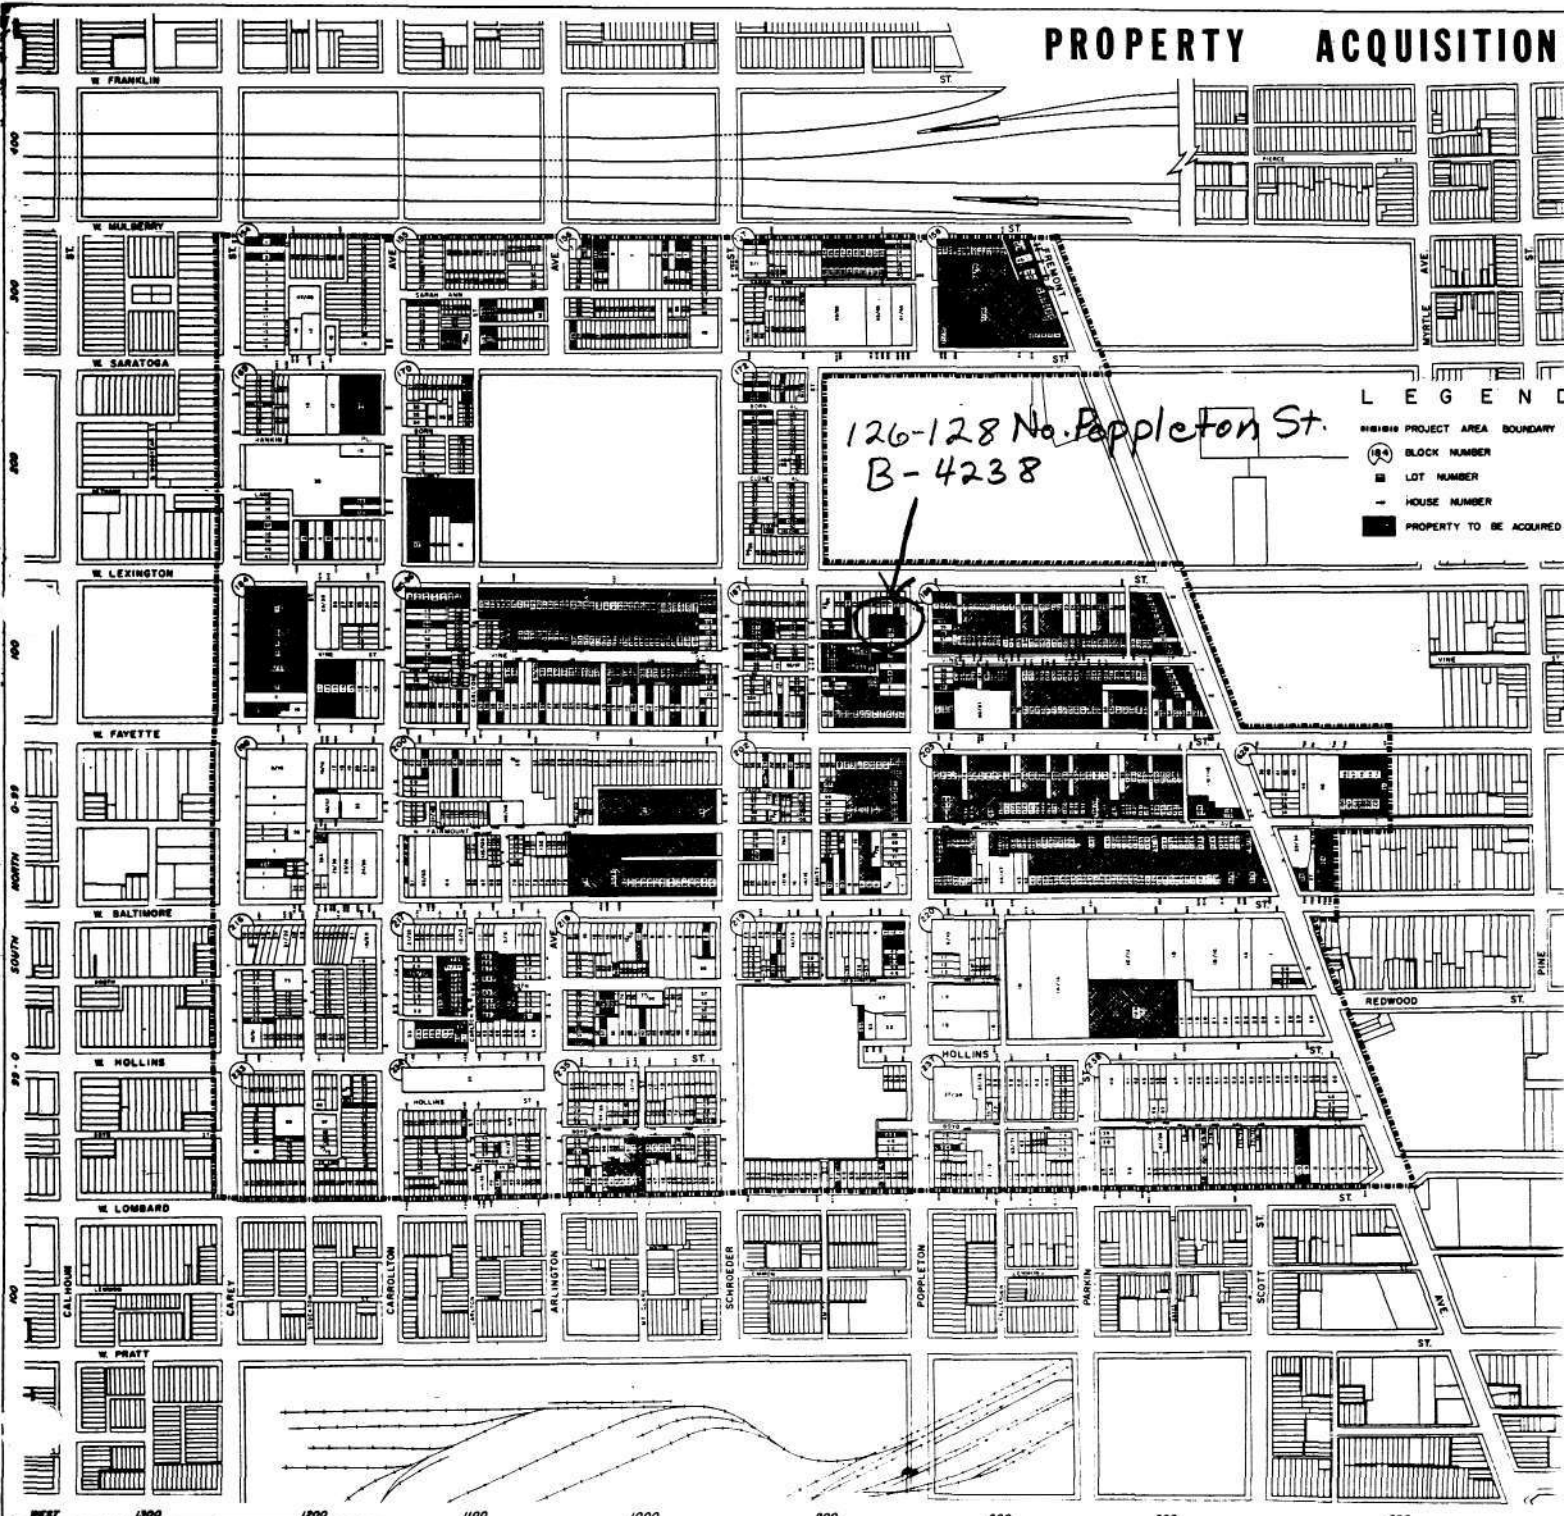

AREA: Architecture LEVEL: Local

The two houses at 126-128 North Poppleton Street are good examples of the undecorated rowhouse type built prior to 1850. Simple and straightforward in design, the facades have large window openings, while the house retains the gable roof of earlier rowhouses. The roof angle is much wider to accommodate the taller and more spacious interior. The houses contribute to an undefined potential historic district of the same general type and date.
